Paula is a litigator at heart. As a family law attorney, she is a strong advocate for her clients, their finances, and most importantly, their parental rights. When necessary, Paula draws on her former career in local television news for contacts and investigative resources. As a former media professional, Paula navigates sensitive issues in high profile cases.

Paula's practice encompasses a wide range of family law issues including child custody and guardianships, domestic violence, relocation, and high-net-worth dissolutions. As a single parent herself, Paula understands the financial minefield of divorce and the immeasurable stress of parenting children through divorce.
